

Physical Security

The effectiveness of security management and the appropriateness and sustainability of security programs is critical to the overall success of today's organizations. Unbiased, qualified security advice from experts is necessary for organizations that are committed to realizing maximum benefit. G4S Corporate Risk Services is comprised of security industry experts with extensive functional experience across multiple security competencies.

Physical Protection System Design

It is more important than ever to incorporate effective security design principles into building construction and operation. G4S's experts review and coordinate with facility owners, design architects, engineers and organizational stakeholders to implement appropriate protective measures into newly constructed or retrofitted facilities.

Vulnerability Assessment

For clients with existing security systems and associated procedures already in place, G4S offers complete system assessments, including operational, technical, procedural and policy reviews. Vulnerability assessments provide solid evidence-based analysis detailing the strengths and weaknesses of security systems.

Physical Security Program Management

Managing physical vulnerabilities requires confirming the appropriateness and effectiveness of security controls, standards and supporting policies to derive the greatest cost-benefit. We work with our clients to formalize a plan that encompasses proactive deterrence and early detection methods, analyzing and evaluating threat capabilities relative to protective solutions to protect against loss events.

Project Management

Project management services are an integral part of G4S's service offerings. It is critical that systems and products are commissioned in compliance with original designs. Our project management process ensures that all aspects of security solutions meet or exceed expectations.
