

Security Management

The effectiveness of security management and the appropriateness and sustainability of security programs is critical to the overall success of today's organizations. The importance of soliciting unbiased, qualified security advice from experts is necessary for organizations committed to realizing the maximum benefits of their security programs. G4S Corporate Risk Services is comprised of security industry experts with extensive functional experience across multiple security competencies.

Threat Risk Assessment

Developing appropriate strategies for managing security risk to an organization requires detailed assessment of the threats and vulnerabilities to valued assets. We provide detailed reports to our clients outlining a comprehensive series of tailored protective solutions to mitigate unacceptable levels of risk.

Enterprise Security Risk Management Guidance

Managing financial, operational and strategic risk requires a dedicated effort by an organization's most senior decision makers. Organizations often view security as a tactical or operational concern and fail to consider the strategic impacts that security threats may pose. Enterprise Security Risk Management (ESRM) is an approach to addressing security strategically, thus allowing organizations to manage the full spectrum of risks that may affect their business. Our consultants can provide organizations with the guidance they need to develop ESRM strategies that fit seamlessly into existing Enterprise Risk Management structures and processes.

Security Program Development

Security programs are most effective when they are aligned with the organization's business and enterprise risk management priorities. Our security management consultants have the expertise to assess and design robust security programs to protect valued assets, safeguard personnel and support operations.

Security Policy, Governance Model and Standard Creation

To ensure the effective and efficient support of security initiatives, a robust security governance framework must be in place. G4S's security consultants develop comprehensive security policy frameworks supported by appropriate procedures and formal standards – all based upon a detailed needs assessment.

Security Awareness and Training Programs

Dollar-for-dollar, the best return on security investment is an employee base who are engaged partners in the security program. G4S Corporate Risk Services delivers security awareness training programs to help businesses improve security effectiveness and reduce risk exposure. Our consultants develop and deliver a host of other custom security training packages, including basic asset protection and many more advanced topics.
